Financial Research Associates' Forum Brings Together Key Decision Makers, Asset Managers and Other Defined Contributions Professionals

DENVER – January 18, 2011 — UAT Inc., a financial services technology firm focused on helping the externally managed and sub-advised industry meet today's higher fiduciary standards, will co-sponsor Financial Research Associates' (FRA) Fourth Annual New Opportunities in the Defined Contributions Market Forum, being held Jan. 19 and 20 at the Harvard Club in Boston. The forum will bring together key players from the defined contribution investment only (DCIO) industry to discuss successful strategies and the state of the industry for 2011.

“The FRA Forum is a chance for asset managers, consultants and advisors to learn how to boost their success in the growing and lucrative DCIO market,” said UAT President Tom Warren, who will also serve as Co-Chair of the conference. “Our sponsorship reflects our ongoing commitment to empowering external managers and sub-advisors and educating them on the need for more oversight and control in the market.”

In addition to co-sponsoring the conference, Mr. Warren will moderate “Platform Selection Criteria in Today's Environment,” and CEO Allan Chiulli will present “What the DCIO Industry Needs to Know About Trading Innovations” to general sessions.

“The FRA Forum provides defined contribution professionals with practical guidance on making the most of the latest opportunities to emerge from the DCIO market,” said Mr. Chiulli. “We are proud to co-sponsor the conference, and remain dedicated to ensuring that external managers and sub-advisors in this market have the right tools in place to prosper while delivering transparency, oversight and control to the industry as a whole.”
